SIGI Country Profile

6 October 2025

SIGI Country Profiles are produced by the OECD Development Centre. Commended and supported by Italy's G7 presidency, these SIGI Country Profiles for Africa focus on violence against women and women's economic empowerment.

The information and analysis contained in this profile are based on data from the fifth edition of the Social Institutions and Gender Index (SIGI) published in March 2023. The cut-off date for legal data is 31 August 2022; the cut-off date for quantitative data is 1 January 2023.

Foreword

The SIGI 2023 profile for Cabo Verde provides a comprehensive overview of the state of gender equality in the country with a focus on violence against women and women's economic empowerment, as measured by the OECD's Social Institutions and Gender Index (SIGI). The fifth edition of the SIGI, released in 2023, assesses 140 countries based on the level of gender-based discrimination in their social institutions. These discriminatory social institutions encompass both formal and informal laws, as well as social norms and practices that restrict women's and girls' access to rights, justice, empowerment opportunities and resources, thereby undermining their agency and authority.

Specifically, the SIGI measures gender-based discrimination across four dimensions covering the major socio-economic areas that affect women and girls throughout their lifetime:

- The "Discrimination in the family" dimension captures social institutions that limit women's decision-making power and weaken their status in the household and the family.
- The "Restricted physical integrity" dimension captures social institutions that increase women's and girls' vulnerability to multiple forms of violence and limit their control over their reproductive autonomy.
- The "Restricted access to productive and financial resources" dimension captures social institutions that limit women's economic opportunities and rights.
- The "Restricted civil liberties" dimension captures social institutions restricting women's access to, and participation and voice in, the public and political spheres.

Each dimension builds on four indicators which, in turn, build on one to three variables depending on data availability (Figure 1). When there are no data gaps, each indicator includes one legal variable, one attitudinal variable and one practice variable. Levels of discrimination in the SIGI and its dimensions are assessed based on scores as follow: very low [0-20]; low [20-30]; medium [30-40]; high [40-50]; and very high [50-100].

The state of gender equality in Cabo Verde

For the fifth edition of the SIGI, published in 2023, no SIGI score could be computed for Cape Verde given missing data points on women's and men's land ownership and share of women among landowners; women's and men's home ownership and share of women among homeowners; women's and men's bank account ownership and share of women among bank account holders; and attitudes towards women's right to a job over men and women's ability to be a business executive. Lack of data points also failed to analyse attitudes on women's ability to be a political leader, women's and men's feeling of insecurity and the share of women among those that feel unsafe. Nonetheless, based on available data, SIGI scores could be calculated for two out of the four dimensions. For information, the average SIGI score in the Africa region is 40 while the global average is 29.

Positive highlights and significant challenges

Positive highlights

- Cabo Verde demonstrates strong legal guarantees in key areas of family law, with no legal discrimination in household responsibilities, divorce, and inheritance.
- The legal framework ensures equal rights for women and men in economic life, with nondiscriminatory laws regarding access to land, non-land assets, financial access, and workplace rights.
- Cabo Verde's civil and political legal protections are among one of the most comprehensives in the region, with no legal barriers to citizenship rights, political participation, freedom of movement, and access to justice.

Significant challenges

- Limited data on discriminatory social norms and women's economic empowerment—including attitudes toward work, unpaid care, political participation, land tenure, and financial inclusion—prevent a comprehensive understanding of women's rights and opportunities in practice, which in turn has led to Cabo Verde not receiving a SIGI score.
- The legal framework governing marriage leaves certain loopholes under which child marriage would be legally allowed.

Social and institutional determinants of violence against women and girls

Violence against women is a global pandemic, with disastrous effects on girls' and women's health and well-being. Moreover, violence against women is rarely an isolated incidence, but often part of patterns of abuse sustained by deeply entrenched but harmful social norms and gender stereotypes. As such, it is more than an interpersonal issue - it is a wider societal problem with consequences on countries' development and welfare.

The United Nations define violence against women as wide range of harmful acts that are rooted in unequal power relations between men and women and that result in - or are likely to result in - physical, sexual or mental harm or suffering to women.² At the global level, the Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women (CEDAW) adopted by the UN General Assembly in 1979 and particularly the General recommendation No. 35 of 2017 recognise the importance of ending gender-based violence against women. In Africa, the Maputo Protocol³ calls on state parties to eliminate all forms of discrimination against women and adopt the needed measures to end and prevent violence against women. The SIGI adopts a life-cycle approach to violence against women and girls covering several types of violence (see Figure 3). This section assesses how social norms and legal frameworks determine girls' and women's risk of being subjected to any of these types of violence.

Violence against women

Practices and social norms related to violence against women

Violence against women remains a major concern in Cabo Verde. Based on the latest available data in 2023, 19% of women aged 15-49 have experienced physical and/or sexual violence by a current or former partner at least once during their lifetime, and 10% of women aged more than 15 have experienced such violence at least once over the last 12 months.⁴

These levels of intimate-partner violence are rooted in its social acceptance. Based on the latest available data in 2023, 23% of women aged 15-49 think that it is justified for a husband to hit or beat his wife under certain circumstances, such as burning the food, arguing with the spouse, going out without telling him, neglecting the children, or refusing to have sex. In comparison, 28% of women hold these discriminatory attitudes worldwide, and 37% across Africa – based on countries for which data are available.

Legal frameworks concerning violence against women

While Article 141 of the Penal Code⁵ sets forth the penalties in case of rape, it does not cover marital rape. Moreover, the definition of rape is not grounded on the lack of consent. Finally, Articles 3-d and 25 of the Special Law Against Gender-Based Violence (GBV)⁶ define and criminalise sexual harassment but do not extend to online spaces.

Child marriage

Practices related to child marriage

Child marriage remains limited in Cabo Verde. Based on the latest available data in 2023, 8% of girls aged 15-19 were or are still married, divorced, widowed or in an informal union, compared to 2% of boys. In addition, 8% of women aged 20-24 were married or in a union before the age of 18,⁷ compared to a world average of 26% and an average of 17% in the MENA region – based on countries for which data are available.

Legal frameworks concerning child marriage

Article 1567 of the Civil Code of Cabo Verde sets the absolute minimum legal age for marriage at 16.8 However, Article 133 of the Civil Code defines anyone under the age of 18 as a minor.9 While the standard

Female genital mutilation and cutting (FGM/C)

Practices and social norms related to FGM/C

Female genital mutilation and cutting (FGM/C) is traditionally concentrated in a limited number of countries that have been well-identified and documented by international organisations at the forefront of the fight against this harmful practice. Yet, evidence highlights that FGM/C takes place across all regions, among indigenous and/or diaspora communities originating from countries where FGM/C is known to be common. In some contexts, girls are taken across national borders to undergo FGM/C in a country where the legislation against the practice is either non-existent or less strict.¹¹

Up until the SIGI 2023 data collection period, Cabo Verde did not have data comparable to that of other countries on the prevalence or attitudes towards FGM/C practices.

Legal frameworks concerning FGM/C

Article 131-A of the Penal Code¹² criminalises female genital mutilation, establishing penalties equivalent to those for aggravated assault and explicitly providing for the punishment of preparatory acts.

Question	Answer	Assessment
Does the law criminalise FGM/C on broad or narrow grounds?	Yes	~
Does the law criminalise FGM/C on narrow grounds only?	No	!
Are there informal laws (customary, traditional or religious laws) that allow or encourage FGM/C?	No	~
Does the law take precedence over informal laws (customary, traditional or religious laws) that allow, condone or prescribe FGM?	n.a.	n.a.

Note: The SIGI methodology assesses laws on FGM/C according to two scenarios: (1) criminalisation on narrow grounds includes laws that contain criminal penalties for acts of "female genital mutilation", "permanent altering/removal of external genitalia", "female circumcision", "excision", "infibulation" and "genital mutilation"; (2) criminalisation on broad grounds includes "mutilation", "harming of a person's organs", "serious bodily injury" and "bodily injury/hurt/assault." The presence of informal laws that allow or encourage FGM/C is proxied by the existence of nationally representative data on FGM/C or the existence of indirect estimates (usually used in countries where FGM/C is mainly practiced by diaspora communities), small-scale studies, or anecdotal evidence and media reports as reported by Equality Now, the End FGM European Network and the US End FGM/C Network in 2020.

Social and institutional determinants of women's economic empowerment

Women's economic empowerment is a cornerstone of gender equality and a critical driver of sustainable development. It enables women to participate in, contribute to, and benefit from economic growth, thereby reducing income inequality, boosting productivity, and fostering innovation (UN Women, 2018)¹³ (Equality Now, 2020)¹⁴. As such, advancing women's economic empowerment is essential to realising the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and building resilient, inclusive societies. Beyond structural factors, social and institutional determinants hold an important sway on women's economic empowerment - including their access to resources and economic opportunities. This section offers insights to what extent social norms and legal frameworks support or restrict women's economic empowerment in Cabo Verde, providing detailed information on the following SIGI indicators: Inheritance; Access to land assets; Access to non-land assets; Access to financial services; and Workplace rights.

Inheritance

Legal frameworks concerning inheritance rights

The legal frameworks governing inheritance grant women and men equal rights.

Question	Answer	Assessment
Do daughters and sons have the same rights to inherit?	Yes	~
Do female and male surviving spouses have the same rights to inherit?	Yes	~
Regarding inheritance rights of daughters, does the law apply to all groups of women?	Yes	~
Regarding inheritance rights of female surviving spouses, does the law apply to all groups of women?	Yes	~
Are there informal laws (customary, traditional or religious laws/rules) that create different rights or abilities between sons and daughters when it comes to inheritance?	No	~

Workplace rights

Practices and social norms related to women's workplace rights

Women enjoy significant access to positions with decision-making power in the economic sphere. Notably, as per the latest available data in 2023, women account for 46% of employees in a managerial position, ¹⁵ compared to a world average of 25% and an average of 33% in Africa – based on countries for which data are available. However, only 17% of companies in the country are headed by women.

Up until the SIGI 2023 data collection period, Cabo Verde does not have data comparable to other countries on attitudes towards women's abilities and rights. For reference, across Africa, an average of 56% of the population believes that men make better business executives than women and 55% of the population agrees that when jobs are scarce, men should have more right to a job then women.

Legal frameworks concerning women's workplace rights

Articles 186 and 271 of Cabo Verde's Labour Code¹⁶ establish the legal framework for maternity and paternity leave. Mothers are entitled to 60 days of paid maternity leave at the time of childbirth. Fathers are entitled to an equivalent duration of leave—either the full 60 days or the remaining part of it—only in specific cases, such as the physical or psychological incapacity of the mother or her death. In the event of the mother's death, a minimum of 30 days' paternity leave is guaranteed. Article 186(j) provides 2 days of paternity leave at the time of the child's birth.
